WOMAN CPA OF THE YEAR ANNOUNCED

DAYTON, OHIO -- The American Woman's Society of Certified Public Accountants (AWSCPA) has announced that its' Woman CPA of the Year award was recently presented to Stacy Stelzriede, CPA at the 2014 Women's Accounting and Leadership Conference in Morristown, New Jersey. It is given by AWSCPA to an individual for outstanding contributions to the accounting profession.

Paying it forward is essential to advancing women in accounting. Stacy, an audit partner at Moss Adams LLP, has made it her mission to do just that: she's devoted her career to mentoring other women and helping them achieve the success she's earned at work and in life. Stacy's path into the partnership was not typical, and her unique story has helped other women understand that they too can find their own path to success.

Stacy is an audit partner in Moss Adams' Health care practice. Stacy spent the first 19 years of her career with a Big 4 firm, auditing health care providers of various sizes, including Kaiser Permanente Health Plans and Hospitals and Children's Hospital of Orange County. She has more than 23 years of experience focusing on payors, large health systems, ancillary care providers, hospitals, physician organizations, long-term care organizations, and other health care service providers. During this time she has successfully built a full practice and is now the office's Health Care Practice Leader. As a keen advocate for mentoring and people development, Stacy is a member of the firm's Forum W Advisory Board. Forum W is the firm's effort to attract, develop, retain and advance talented women. In this role, she's a strategic thought leader at a firm-wide level.
